

ABSTRACT:

A suck device for feeding favorite domestic animals includes a bottle containing the water, a lid engaged a neck of the bottle, an oblique pipette extended outward from a bottom of the lid communicating with the bottle and having an outlet in free end, a ball movably disposed into the oblique pipette and normal stopping the outlet. It is characterized in that a water guiding pipe of predetermined length movably disposed into the oblique pipette having a lower end stopped against the ball and an upper end reaching to the water interface in the lid by which the water from the bottle can be smoothly and continuously flow out when the animal lick and sucks the outlet of the oblique pipette.